

The Salvation Army Pomona Corps

From time to time I would like to take an opportunity to share with each of you our members, visitors and friends directly from my heart. As I spend time in the study of God's word many times the Lord speaks to me in specific ways which unfortunately I am not always able to share with you every Sunday during our study and sermon time.

Through this medium I hope I may be able to share these additional blessings from God that He sends to my life and I gladly pass on to you. I welcome your thoughts on the themes and as always appreciate you sharing these blessings with your friends and neighbors and maybe use it as an evangelistic tool to invite them to visit our flock.

In recent weeks through prayer and study I have been going through a specific thought pattern that has helped me to discover how from time to time we all need to empty ourselves of all of the denominational and religious junk that tends to build up in our lives which prevents us from fully experiencing God's mercy and grace.

This spiritual cleansing has caused me to ask the question of who am I? Obviously who I thought I wanted to be was based on the previously mentioned clutter. However, God has revealed to me through a song by the musical group Kutless the answer to whom I am and to also hopefully wrap my mind around where the identity of every follower of Christ is found. I hope you are blessed as I was by these words.

"Complete"

Incomplete it all began
The broken state that I was in
I wished that I was someone else
cause' I was lost inside myself
I started seeing who I am
The day my life with you began
You clearly solved the mystery
That finding you meant finding me.

I've fallen to my knees
I'm bowing at your feet
I give you all of me
In you I am complete
It's all because of love
I'm not who I was
I'm who I meant to be
In you I am complete

I've got to tell the world
about the things you've done
I want to shout it out,
I'm gonna live it now
Amazing grace is why I'm singing
For in you I am complete

Indeed only in God are we complete. As each of us comes to experience this feeling of purpose and belonging in Christ may we use that Joy for the benefit of others and help them to also find their way to their Savior.

Humbly,

Captain Moy Hernandez, Jr.
Pomona Corps Pastor

The Salvation Army Pomona Corps

From time to time I would like to take an opportunity to share with each of you our members, visitors and friends directly from my heart. As I spend time in the study of God's word many times the Lord speaks to me in specific ways which unfortunately I am not always able to share with you every Sunday during our study and sermon time.

Through this medium I hope I may be able to share these additional blessings from God that He sends to my life and I gladly pass on to you. I welcome your thoughts on the themes and as always appreciate you sharing these blessings with your friends and neighbors and maybe use it as an evangelistic tool to invite them to visit our flock.

In recent weeks through prayer and study I have been going through a specific thought pattern that has helped me to discover how from time to time we all need to empty ourselves of all of the denominational and religious junk that tends to build up in our lives which prevents us from fully experiencing God's mercy and grace.

This spiritual cleansing has caused me to ask the question of who am I? Obviously who I thought I wanted to be was based on the previously mentioned clutter. However, God has revealed to me through a song by the musical group Kutless the answer to whom I am and to also hopefully wrap my mind around where the identity of every follower of Christ is found. I hope you are blessed as I was by these words.

"Complete"

Incomplete it all began
The broken state that I was in
I wished that I was someone else
cause' I was lost inside myself
I started seeing who I am
The day my life with you began
You clearly solved the mystery
That finding you meant finding me.

I've fallen to my knees
I'm bowing at your feet
I give you all of me
In you I am complete
It's all because of love
I'm not who I was
I'm who I meant to be
In you I am complete

I've got to tell the world
about the things you've done
I want to shout it out,
I'm gonna live it now
Amazing grace is why I'm singing
For in you I am complete

Indeed only in God are we complete. As each of us comes to experience this feeling of purpose and belonging in Christ may we use that Joy for the benefit of others and help them to also find their way to their Savior.

Humbly,

Captain Moy Hernandez, Jr.
Pomona Corps Pastor